State spotlight: Mothers on the Rise Initiative

The Indiana State Department of Health (IDOH) supports Indiana University Richard M. Fairbanks School of Public Health's Mothers on the Rise Initiative. Mothers on the Rise works to support a successful reentry for parenting women leaving the nursery unit at the Indiana Women's prison and The Craine House through community navigation, peer support, and professional development. This year, Mother's on the Rise has developed, implemented, and are evaluating a coordinated system of care for seven mothers and their babies who transitioned from the nursery unit to their home community.

Current Special Projects of Regional and National Significance (SPRANS)

Special Projects of Regional and National Significance (SPRANS) funding complements the formula funding each state receives and helps ensure the success of state Title V, Medicaid, and CHIP programs by driving innovation, responding to emerging and entrenched issues, and building capacity for integrated systems of care for women, children, and families.
