State spotlight: Mothers on the Rise Initiative

The Indiana Department of Health supports the Indiana University School of Medicine Department of Pediatrics' Mothers on the Rise Initiative. Mothers on the Rise supports successful reentry for parenting women leaving the nursery unit at the Indiana Women's Prison and The Craine House through community navigation, peer support, and professional development. Mothers on the Rise has developed, implemented, and evaluated a coordinated system of care for twenty-three mothers and their babies who transitioned into their home community. The community navigators' team has been spectacular in communicating and partnering with Indiana's justice system to provide the tools and a community where it is safe rewrite their life's narratives.

Current Special Projects of Regional and National Significance (SPRANS)

Special Projects of Regional and National Significance (SPRANS) funding complements the formula funding each state receives and helps ensure the success of state Title V, Medicaid, and CHIP programs by driving innovation, responding to emerging and entrenched issues, and building capacity for integrated systems of care for women, children, and families.
