State spotlight: Students Run Philly Style's OUTPace Program

Title V funds support Students Run Philly Style (SRPS)'s OUTPace youth running and mentorship program improving health outcomes and increasing protective factors for youth in Philadelphia. SRPS collaborated with RunSignup, the race registration platform, to expand inclusivity and create welcoming spaces. In 2020, SRPS began including a nonbinary race registration option for their races. In 2021, the Philadelphia Distance Run, organized by SRPS, became the first major U.S. road race to offer a nonbinary division with equal prize money for elite nonbinary athletes. In 2022, RunSignup announced full nonbinary support on the platform, allowing a more inclusive registration experience. Since then, hundreds of races, including the Blue Cross Broad Street Run and Philadelphia Marathon, two large races in Philadelphia, have enabled nonbinary registration through RunSignup. OUTPace was recognized by the Philadelphia Gay News and LGBTQ+ Community at the 2022 Stonewall Awards Brunch for their efforts to become more open and inclusive for youth in their program.
